A Life Insurance Trust Multiplies Security Values

Few owners of, say, $10,000 in securities realize that they can make them worth $20,000 to $30,000 or more to their estates, simply by using them as a fund upon which to base a Life Insurance Trust. The plan is practical, safe, sure, and is explained in detail in our booklet, "Protecting Your Family With Life Insurance."• Copies on request from one of our Trust Officers.

On The Hill

Contemporary Topics of Interest to Graduates of Brown

Beautiful Weather

NO finer weather ever favored Commencement Week at Brown than blessed the four days of festival and observance from Friday to Monday inclusive this year. There was a heavy rain on Thursday evening, when the usual fraternity dances were held, but after that the weather was excellent—rainless and neither too warm nor too cool—until the last social function of the week, the President's reception on Monday was concluded.

The New Commencement

SO far as we have heard comments on the new Commencement Week schedule they have been preponderantly favorable. The general verdict is that the week end arrangement is of decided convenience to business men, who in the past have found it hard to get away from their work in the middle of the week.

* * *

Degrees Conferred

DEGREES in course were conferred on Commencement Day as follows:

Bachelor of Arts, men 79, women 82; total 161.

Bachelor of Philosophy, men 174, women 22; total 196.

Bachelor of Science in Engineering, men 20.

Bachelor of Science in Chemistry, men 5.

Bachelor of Education, man 1, women 5; total 6.

Two days previously at Sayles Hall the degree of Master of Arts was conferred on 45 candidates, the degree of Master of Science on 18 candidates and the degree of Doctor of Philosophy on 8 candidates.

Seven honorary degrees were conferred on Commencement Day.

The total of degrees conferred was 459 in course and 7 honorary, a grand total of 466.

The Women's College

ELSEWHERE in this issue of the Alumni Monthly will be found the timely address on "The Affiliated College" delivered on Ivy Day by Dean Morriss of the Women's College in Brown University. We agree with it from start to finish. We have pointed out many times in years past the superiority of the co-ordinated women's college, such as we have at Brown, to the separate women's college and the coeducational college.

We believe that the present arrangement at Brown should be maintained in all essentials—that the Women's College should be an integral part of the University, that its graduates should be graduates of Brown, that its diploma should be absolutely equal in significance to the diploma given to Brown's men graduates.

We incline to believe that a distinctive name for the Women's College would be preferable to the present title, though we have no deep-seated objection to this latter. There is an incongruity in our existing nomenclature, in that we write "Women's College" with capital initials and "men's college" without them. This looks like an implication of masculine inferiority, though Dean Morriss dwells on the wholesome sense of humility implanted in the Women's College student by a realization of the undergraduate man's habitual attitude of superiority.

This attitude, we may add, is subject to a good many exceptions and provisos. For instance we find in the men's college a considerable body of individual admirers of individual Women's College undergraduates.

The general opinion among the undergraduate men is that there should be no coeducational system at Brown. But short of that, we hope we shall have our coordinate or affiliated Women's College (under whatever name) to the end of the chapter.

A New Library Fund

PRESIDENT FAUNCE announced in Sayles Hall at Commencement that the Corporation had set on foot a movement to establish a Library Continuing Fund, the first objective of this fund to be a half a million dollars for the extension—practically the doubling—of the John Hay Library.

It may surprise some to learn that the John Hay Library needs extension, but in 1910 when it was opened the University possessed, apart from the John Carter Brown Library, 170,000 volumes. It now has more than 370,000. The John Hay Library was built to hold 300,000 volumes. The nineteen department libraries relieve it of many volumes, but actually at the present time it is housing its designed limit.

As the annual number of volumes added annually, on the basis of the last three years, is more than 17,000, the work of the library, from now on until a new building is provided, will be increasingly hampered by overcrowding. To relieve the situation as soon as possible the proposed fund is sought from students, alumni and other friends of the University. The Library Committee has announced an initial subscription of $25,000. One class has already sent in a contribution.

The fund will not cease with the completion of the new building, but will be expected to accumulate until another half million is reached, when further building may be undertaken and if a balance remains, one-half will be an accumulating fund and the income of the other half is to be expended for books. Thus the aim of the fund is far reaching and contemplates the growth of the Library as the research laboratory of the growing University.

At the Meeting House

AS USUAL the meeting house was crowded for the graduation exercises on Monday morning, even though some pressure had been taken off the demand for admittance by the holding of exercises in connection with the conferring of advanced degrees at Sayles Hall on Saturday.

Chief upon the program were three undergraduate addresses, as is customary. The writer remembers that when he graduated a good many years ago the Commencement undergraduate speakers numbered no less than 12, and he is sure that the reduction of this number to three is a great improvement. But at the same time he believes that if even as many as three are to be heard in the future they should be chosen primarily for their powers of public address rather than for mere scholarship.

The most enthusiastically received address this year was that of Frank G. Singiser, Jr., of Troy, New York, whose theme was presented with a surprising maturity of technique. Singiser had poise, sense of proportion, confidence and humor. His talents should be used in professional public address, it seems to us—perhaps as a pleader at the bar, perhaps as a clergyman. The audience at once made manifest its appreciation of his speech, giving him prolonged applause.

The other two addresses were substantial, creditable, carefully delivered. But they were essays, rather than orations. The speakers ranked among the highest students in the class, and presumably were chosen for that fact, or partly because of it. But, as the Monthly has had many occasions to say in the past, and will probably say a good many times in the future, the art of public address has little to do with any other art. And where we have a class of nearly 300 undergraduate young men, the authorities, in our judgment, should select for the Commencement exercises at the meeting house the three who are best calculated by speaking talent to keep these exercises at a lofty level of quality.

The best student in a class ought not to be chosen to speak simply because of his high stand. He might present a learned treatise on the Habits of the Mud Turtle in the Wild and Captive State; this treatise might be the sign-post of a new era of biological knowledge; but the audience would not care a rap for it. Let the cleverest public speaker in the class, however, romanticize on the Hare and the Tortoise, injecting into his oration fancy, imagination, philosophy and solid sense, bring into play those arts of the speaker that are the combined result of natural temper and assiduous training, and the audience would rise to him at one man.

Or so it seems to us.

Mr. Hughes Speaks

IT MIGHT be thought that Charles Evans Hughes, having obtained so many distinguished honors from his Alma Mater, would not care to return to Brown at Commencement to receive the Susan Colver Rosenbacker medal conferred by the Faculty for meritorious public service, yet he was evidently glad to come back again. His affection for Brown is deep and sincere, and his response upon receiving the medal was full of true and tender feeling. Many Brown men who talked with him at Commencement have said that he seemed not merely friendly and genial but finely tempered and mellow, smilingly happy to be on the campus once more.

Honorary Degrees

ED. DOC. GEORGE HERBERT SHERWOOD, who, graduating from Brown University thirty years ago, has steadily and successfully pursued the task of making the results of scientific investigation and exploration intelligible to the world, and as Curator and Executive in the American Museum of Natural History has rendered a public service gladly recognized by his Alma Mater.

SC. D. HARVEY NATHANIEL DAVIS, not only son of Brown but son of one of its most beloved teachers, for nearly a quarter century teaching Engineering at Harvard while advising American engineers in their control of water power and their conquest of the air, now about to achieve as President of Stevens Institute a still greater leadership in the building of men whose character and training shall match their marvelous opportunity.

D. D. WILLARD LEAROYD SPERRY, minister and leader in the Kingdom of God, educated in Ohio, in Connecticut and in Great Britain, who after two notable pastorates in New England became in 1922 Dean of the Theological School at Harvard University, and by voice and pen and the contagion of personality has equipped many modern prophets of the ancient faith, and to a restless generation, always seeking some new thing, steadily proclaimed that the things which are unseen are eternal.

LL. D. OWEN D. YOUNG, citizen not only of New York, but of all

America, who through the profession of the law passed into the wider profession of counsellor and leader in the applications of science to the industrial development of our country, and in these later years has faced still greater problems in the fields of national unemployment, of international reparations and the principles and policies of modern education; honored by Japan, Belgium, France, Germany and to-day welcomed into fellowship by Brown University.

LL. D. WALTER PERLEY HALL, son of New Hampshire and Rhode Island, distinguished citizen of Massachusetts, who as former Assistant Attorney General of that State, Chairman of its Railroad Commission, Justice of its Superior Court, and Chief Justice for the last seven years, has through a long career lived far from the madding crowd but close to the founders of American liberty under law, and by skillful analysis and administration constantly aided in making technical legality synonymous with eternal justice.

D. D. CHARLES WHITNEY GILKEY, born on New England soil, trained not only here and in New York, but at famous seats of learning in Germany, in England and in Scotland, who preaching in one Chicago pulpit for the last eighteen years, has made that position a centre of world-wide influence, and has brought to the stolid idolatries of India and to the hectic heathenism of America the challenge and summons of the Man of Galilee.

LL. D. DWIGHT WHITNEY MORROW, son of Amherst College and Columbia University, whose career in the law and in banking has been only the stepping-stone to distinguished public service in days of war and years of peace, who as Ambassador to Mexico has shown us that peaceful intentions are the prelude to honorable settlement, that good manners will accomplish more than great guns, and that all the nations on this hemisphere may, if they so determine, constitute a federation of enduring brotherhood.

The Affiliated College

Ivy Day Address by Margaret S. Morriss, Dean of the Women's College in Brown University

THERE has been a great deal of talk in the past year about the women's colleges in this country, their accomplishments, their needs, and their future usefulness. You have doubtless all read the article by the Presidents of seven women's colleges which appeared last spring in the Atlantic Monthly, and the more recent series of papers in the New York Times. Their purpose, of course, was to have the colleges take stock of themselves, and especially to have the public realize the importance of the colleges in the life of this country. One of the things which interested me most in the course of the appearance of these articles was a letter in the Atlantic in answer to the first statement of the college presidents. The writer of that letter submitted a theory that the solution of a good many of the problems of the women's colleges lay in the women's college affiliated with a great university. Those of us who are connected with such a college appreciate the high value of this relationship and rejoice to learn that the type is becoming somewhat popular. Two western colleges are just starting affiliated women's colleges, and a number of other institutions are considering such an organization of their student bodies. It seems appropriate, therefore, for me to talk for a few minutes to the Senior Class at Brown, so soon to be graduates of an affiliated college, about this type of institution as one which is important and significant in the development of education in this country.

First of all, what is an affiliated or coordinate college? How would you define it? An affiliated college is a women's college within a university, an integral part intellectually of the university, and administered wholly or in part by it, but possessing a separate plant and a separate social life of its own. The two outstanding and oldest examples of this kind of college are Radcliffe and Barnard.

Radcliffe is affiliated with Harvard University. It offers systematic instruction to women by the professors and other teachers of Harvard. Graduates of Radcliffe receive their degrees from Radcliffe College countersigned by the President of Harvard, as a guarantee that the work is of equal value to that done at the men's college. Radcliffe, therefore, gives its own degree, has a separate board of trustees and endowment, but has the same professors as the men's institution.

Barnard is the undergraduate college for women at Columbia University. Its graduates receive their degrees directly from Columbia, so that the degree is the same as that given to the men. It has a separate board of trustees, a separate endowment and its own Faculty, which ranks, however, as an integral part of the Faculty of Columbia.

The relationship between the Women's College in Brown University and Brown differs from both of these. It seems to me that the Women's College embodies the best features of both of the older institutions. The Women's College, like Radcliffe, has the same Faculty as the University; like Barnard it receives the same degree as the University; like both of the others, it has its own separate equipment and social life. Its own unique feature is that it has practically no separate free endowment aside from the buildings, and that it operates under the same Board of Trustees, i.e., the Corporation, as the University. In this way it combines the advantages of both the older institutions with a unique advantage of its own. I submit that the most desirable type of affiliated college is one which gives young women the opportunity to develop as freely as possible to meet their own needs, but that at the same time makes clear, by giving the same degree and by having the same professors, that the young women are enjoying equal intellectual opportunities with the men.

As graduates of Brown you will have graduated from an affiliated college, and I believe you should realize fully the peculiar advantages you have had, if only that in the future you may weigh well such advantages in advising your own students what to do, if you are teachers, or in telling your own children or relatives, when they go to college, that they may well choose Brown; or even, for that matter, that you may understand more clearly the different types of education for women in this country. I believe that, in many ways, the affiliated college—Brown if you will—has great advantages over both the women's colleges and the co-educational universities.

One way in which it is more fortunate is that a college like ours has a chance to link itself up with the older traditions of education. Take, for example, the Charter of Brown University which President Faunce so often quotes:

"Into this liberal and catholic institution shall never be admitted any religious tests: But on the contrary, all the members hereof shall forever enjoy full, free, absolute and uninterrupted liberty of conscience."

Should we not be proud that we, too, have that inheritance of liberality and toleration in higher education? We have a greater incentive to live up to such traditions as these than a younger institution could have. We strike our roots deeper into the past through our connection with Brown University.

The intangible, but ever real, advantage to an affiliated college is the fact that it has an opportunity to feel and to become a part of the atmosphere of a great university. I am convinced that this leads to considerable independence in thought on the part of the students of the Women's College. There is apt to be less spoon feeding in a place like this in a women's college where the students are more closely followed from the academic point of view. I remember what the President of Student Government said to me when I first came to Brown. She said, "Miss Morriss, we are much freer than women's college students seem to be. Our students can get away with a good deal less studying than they do at ——" and she named a women's college with which she was familiar. "On the other hand they have more time to think, and many of them think more deeply. They are much more on their own, because the professors cannot, or do not, follow them so closely." I have been here six years now and I am sure that she was right. There is a certain maturity in the point of view of the students here which I did not find so often in the

"Fifty Plus" Reunion

The Fifty Plus classes, graduated from Brown University 50 or more years ago, held their reunion dinner on Saturday evening, June 16, at Carr's.

Those present were Rev. W. J. Batt '55 of Concord, Mass., 94 years old, the University's oldest alumnus; Dr. George B. Peck '64 of Providence, and his brother, William T. Peck '70, principal of the Classical High School, Providence; John E. Bowen '67, oldest employe of the City of Providence; Wilfred H. Munro '70, professor emeritus of history, of Providence, captain and catcher on the famous Sophomore baseball team of 1868; Charles H. Bowker '70 of Worcester, second baseman on the team; Rev. David W. Hoyt '71 of Worcester, poet, who recited his own composition, "Fourscore at Commencement;" Arthur H. Armington '71 of Providence, and Rev. Alford E. Johnson '71 of Providence and Florida.

Commencement Notes

The ivy on the college buildings looked particularly fine at Commencement time.

Lincoln Field has been much improved by the setting out of 8 or 10 large trees in two rows from Sayles Hall to the Soldiers Gate.

Rev. William J. Batt '55 of Concord Junction, Mass., the oldest living graduate of Brown, participated in the Commencement Day march down the hill.

Charles Evans Hughes was the guest of Theodore Francis Green over Commencement, while Mr. and Mrs. Frank L. Hinckley entertained Ambassador Dwight L. Morrow.

Ex-President Alexander Meiklejohn of Amherst College (now at the University of Wisconsin) marched with his class ('93). As he neared the Meeting House he was greeted with cheers from an alumni group of "Meiklejohn for President."

women's colleges with which I have been associated. I think that is one of the great assets in our connection with the University.

Of course, the outstanding advantage which leaps to the mind at once is the University Faculty. As a good feminist, I rather resent the fact that students say, "Oh yes, they come to Brown because they want men to teach them." I think that fundamentally it is not because the faculty of a great university is made up almost entirely of men that it is a better faculty than that of a women's college. It is because the faculty of a great university is made up of well-known scholars that it is significant and important. Such a faculty is necessarily more stimulating and inspiring than the faculty of an institution with more limited resources. Some day perhaps there will be women as well as men on the Faculty at Brown because with continued opportunity women will become better known in scholarship, but always the Faculty of Brown University will have the best scholars at its service. This is, of course, the greatest asset which an affiliated college has, and constitutes its great intellectual advantage. May we include with that the fact that the intellectual equipment—the libraries and laboratories, for the use not only of the undergraduates, but graduate students as well—is also far superior to that of the separate college for women.

I think of another characteristic of the affiliated college which by some may not be considered an advantage at all. One of our alumnae, addressing the Association recently on the advantages of having come to Brown, stressed humility of spirit as a habit of mind which she had learned here and which had stood her in good stead ever since her college days. She claimed that a sense of inferiority is carefully implanted in the undergraduate of the Women's College by her brothers on the Hill, and that it operates not only to spur her on to overcome it, according to Dr. Adler's idea of the value of the inferiority complex in the making of character, but also that it tends to temper the undue arrogance of the modern college woman in what is still a man made world. Graduates of the women's colleges do not really know what the world is like. Their whole plant exists for them, and operates solely for their benefit. Only when they leave college do they discover that the world is made up of men and women, and that at present it is still made up primarily for their brothers. This is a somewhat hard awakening which is spared to the graduates of an affiliated college. Miss Foster, however, in all seriousness, transferred the idea of humility of spirit from its social implications to an intellectual habit of mind which is wholly admirable. Humility of spirit in one's approach to learning, a willingness to be taught, an eager desire to keep on learning, and the firm belief that there are tremendous opportunities for mental development further on—is not this habit of mind supremely worth while, even if it does come indirectly by way of a sense of inferiority carefully fostered by an undergraduate college of men?

In all these ways, the affiliated college of men has the advantage over the college for women only. But, you say, can you not get all these advantages, except perhaps the last, by co-education—just by being part of a great university? Possibly this is true, although I am not sure of it, but there are at least two other advantages which would be missed in a co-educational university.

The college affiliated with a university has an opportunity to undertake experiments which will suit the separate needs of both sexes. It can develop a separate social organization and it may even offer different intellectual food to its students. The same degree at the end of the four years' course guarantees equality, and the separate class room allows for experiment. Few, except the "die-hard" feminists, think that women and men should necessarily have exactly the same education. We all believe that the same subject should be taught in the same way, instead of being made easier or softer for the feminine mind, but I think most of us believe that women's education has a right to differ in emphasis and often in intellectual content from that offered to men.

Secondly—everyone recognizes that in an affiliated college the women have a much better place in the sun than in the co-educational institution. It is of great educational value to them to have an opportunity to be able to develop their own organization, with all the chance for the display of initiative and originality which that means. Did you ever notice that in public high schools or State universities a woman is almost always the class secretary or vice president?

On the whole, the affiliated college makes an interesting and valuable contribution to American education, and the Women's College in Brown University is one of the most important colleges of this type in the country. There has been a good deal of loose talk about the relationship between the Women's College and Brown University. This paper, of course, is not an official pronouncement in any way, but it is a sort of analysis of the situation as I see it. I have wanted to make it just at this time because I think the students of the Women's College should feel proud of the unique position of their Alma Mater. I hope they will be especially eager to give her their sympathy and their interest because of the big contribution which she is making to the educational problems of the world today. And especially, I want them to be happy that they have been privileged to become her loyal daughters.

Walter Cochrane Bronson---In Memoriam

THE death of Walter Cochrane Bronson at Oxford, England, in May, brought sorrow to a host of his fellow Brunonians. He was visiting England with Mrs. Bronson, finding a congenial and scholarly leisure after his retirement from his active faculty duties at Brown last year. His death was unexpected, though he had been in impaired health. The cause was an abdominal malady.

Walter Cochrane Bronson was born at Roxbury, Mass., Aug. 17, 1862. He prepared for college at the Putnam, Conn., High School, and entered Brown in the fall of 1883. He was from the first a marked man in scholarship, taking high rank and graduating A. B. with high honors in 1887.

The writer of these lines well remembers the effect produced by Bronson's class poem on Class Day in that year. It was called "Modern Monks" and was a plea for a broad intellectual life. The great audience in Sayles Hall received it with extraordinary enthusiasm and it took rank as one of the best, if not the best, since John Hay's "Erato, or the Power of Song," in 1858.

Bronson had all the makings of a poet but he rarely indulged the muse. The Brunonian printed two short metrical pieces of his in the year succeeding his graduation, but thereafter he gave himself to the compiling and analyzing of other men's poetry instead of contributing from his own storehouses of talent and inspiration. Perhaps, as a matter of fact, his flowering as a poet was a springtime phenomenon, with no midsummer impulse toward rhyme. We recall (quoting from memory) one of the poems he sent to the Brunonian within the year after his graduation:

BEAUTY

I wandered by the moonlit sea;
The mystery of its silver sheen
Stole my heart away from me:
"Beauty, thou shalt be my queen."
Then the still white Christ arose,
More beautiful than beauty He.
My heart with inward passion glows:
"Duty, thou my king shalt be."

Bronson, upon graduating from Brown, went to the Harvard Divinity School, following in the footsteps of his father and grandfather (the latter the Rev. Asa C. Bronson), both of whom were ministers. But the call of literature was insistent and he took an A. M. in English at Cornell in 1890. For two years he taught at DePauw University in Indiana, and in 1892 he returned to Brown as associate professor of English literature. In 1895 he was advanced to the full professorial rank. Brown gave him the degree of doctor of letters in 1915, eleven years after the bestowal of the same honor by Colby. On Aug. 17, 1905, he was married to Elsie Marion Straffin, A. M., Brown 1904, who, being a specialist in English, has been for years his literary assistant and colleague.

Bronson published a "History of Brown University" in 1914, at the time of the college's sesquicentennial. This history took precedence at once as the best account of the rise and development of Brown. He published "American Poems" in 1912 and "American Prose" in 1916, books that have become standard works for school and college use. His "Poems of William Collins" is recognized as a definitive edition of that poet's work and a fine example of intelligent and informed editorship. "English Essays" appeared in 1905 and "A Short History of American Literature" in 1900.

Few teachers at Brown have left behind them a more distinct impression than Bronson. He knew his subject thoroughly and tintured it with his personality. To ambitious and talented youth he was a beacon light of encouragement; for the less inspired student he had courtesy and consideration if sometimes the scholar's mild scorn. To sit under his instruction was to take a course not merely in English but in Bronson.

For years he was at the head of the Department of English, retiring at the close of the academic year in 1927, upon the completion of his 65th year. He will be remembered as a choice soul, far removed from egotism, shy and self-deprecatory despite the showering of honors and appreciation upon him. He was happy among his books, fortunate in his marriage, contented in his college environment. And if he had been called upon to choose a spot for his passing he could scarcely have selected one summing up his view and judgment of life better than the historic English university town in which his quiet days came to a calm but too early end.

The Baccalaureate Sermon

President Faunce's baccalaureate sermon on Sunday afternoon, June 17, was one of the best of the long series of these addresses of his. "A growing man," he said, "is the only real leader of men. A growing moral code is the only one that can claim to be divine, the only code that can reveal the mind of God or hold the minds of men." Dr. Faunce's text was from II. Corinthians 6:13; "Be ye also enlarged."

The concluding portion of the discourse was as follows:

"The comradeship of teacher and taught in the ceaseless, fearless search for truth is the characteristic mark of the modern university. All knowledge is for all men and women at the proper age and by the proper mode of communication. There are no truths that are safe for the ministers of religion but to be permanently concealed from the eyes of laymen. All that we really know about the origins of religion is not indeed to be thrust upon little children, but is to be made known to all mature minds. All that we know about the origin of life upon the globe, or the perpetuation of life through the family is to be made known to all adults, and secrecy brings only shame and tragedy. There are no permanent tabus in the field of fact. Those who would keep us ignorant in order to keep us safe are blind leaders of the blind.

"But the endless search for facts must include all the facts, or we become lop-sided in our growth. Ugliness and crime are facts, indeed, and the tabloids thrive on such facts alone. But beauty, whether of color or sound or conduct, is also a fact that is ever with us. The hero who gives all for mother or sister or wife is as much a fact as the coward who collapses in suicide. The art gallery is as real a fact as the kitchen, the cathedral as real as the garage, the sunset as real as the sewer, and the dream of John Bunyan far more substantial than any nightmares from Hollywood. The men who are devoting their lives to research to-day are discovering that the real facts are the 'imponderables.' They are finding that atoms dissolve into invisible forces, that electrons may be only vibrations or waves or rays, and that currents in the ether are more real than the Woolworth Building or the Pyramids of Egypt. Therefore we distrust all dogmatism, whether it be theological or scientific. To say 'That cannot be true because it conflicts with our inherited dogma' is to close our eyes in a growing world. But pseudo-science may be quite as dogmatic as theology. Some of the theories that masquerade under the name of scientific research may close our eyes to whole realms of truth. Some would-be teachers seem bent on proving that man instead of being a little lower than the angels is little higher than the brutes. When I read in one popular lecture that 'the human will is simply a chemical reaction' and in another that belief is only a matter of digestion and all heroism merely a product of the ductless glands, I perceive that such men are engaged, for reasons of their own, in belittling all human personality, in contracting the realms of knowledge and pronouncing all the finest achievements of humanity incredible. A portrait by Rembrandt is more than a cunning mixture of pigments, a symphony of Brahms is more than so many vibrations per second. Lincoln's Gettysburg address was something more than contractions of his epiglottis, and forevermore 'life's bases rest beyond the probe of chemic test.' Let no dogma, physical or metaphysical, belittle ourselves and our world into a dance of atoms on a mound of mud.

"One thing more. The secret of endless growth is self-dedication to some lifelong endeavor. We enlarge ourselves not by continually working at ourselves, not by trying to improve our minds and polish up our character, but by forgetting ourselves in devotion to some challenging and absorbing task—national, international or spiritual. Growth, like happiness, is the by-product of high endeavor. To get it we must forget it and plunge into some world-wide task that is really worth while. Great objectives make great men and women. A little object belittles the man who pursues it. Let us cease to prepare for a job and rather prepare for the great and joyous enterprise of living. All the small jobs and callings and tasks will inevitably vanish and leave their followers unoccupied. Thirty years ago the lamplighter earned an honest living by lighting the street lamps after dark—his calling has ceased to be. Formerly the brakeman was needed on every train, but his task has vanished. But the great task of spreading truth and light throughout the world, of sustaining home and school and church, of building what the Bible calls the Kingdom of God—he who dedicates himself to that can never be flung as rubbish to the void, but his life grows larger and richer as it grows longer. 'He that shares the life of God, with Him surviveth all.'

"A few years ago a student who had seemed utterly careless and reckless, rebelling against all the common regulations of life, sat in a biological laboratory gazing for a long time through a microscope at a bit of living, growing tissue. Suddenly he stood up with a new light in his eyes, a new accent in his voice. 'I see it now,' he said, 'all life, past and future, from the lowest to the highest is an endless chain. I will not be a rotten link in that chain!' That endless chain we do not create; but what shall be the quality of our own link we alone can decide."

News From the Brown Clubs

By Alfred H. Gurney

PITTSBURGH BROWN CLUB

As the Brown University Club of Pittsburgh begins another year, Robert A. Marble '05 will be president and Edward W. Hill '15, secretary and treasurer. President Marble succeeds Dr. Judson A. Crane '05, who expects to be absent from the University of Pittsburgh the next academic year. The members of the club in annual meeting on June 1, in addition to electing officers, voted to offer a scholarship to a student entering Brown from the Pittsburgh district in the fall of 1929. The president was authorized to name a committee to report the details of the scholarship at the next meeting. There was discussion of the trophy to be awarded to one of the city high schools, and the club also decided that it could not participate in the trophy plan suggested by the Cleveland and Buffalo clubs. Leon F. Payne '07 presided at the meeting as President Crane could not attend.

BROWN CLUB OF BALTIMORE

Dr. Justin Andrews '23 reports that the Brown Club of Baltimore "had a small and very informal meeting on May 25. We had no speaker, but spent most of the evening in discussion and listening to the 'old timers' reminisce. I found out that Walter G. Chandler '78, Sam Damon '16, John B. Pastore '27 and myself would be back for at least part of Commencement festivities this year." The Baltimore group has had visits this past year from the Alumni Secretary and Dean Mason, and it makes up in interest in Brown affairs and activities what it lacks in size.

BROWN CLUB OF VERMONT

The annual meeting of the Brown Club of Vermont, an informal affair, held at Sally's restaurant, Burlington, on May 12, resulted in the election of Professor Arthur I. Andrews '01 as president, E. A. Flood '27, vice president, Mrs. P. D. Carleton '22, secretary, C. G. Doll '24, treasurer, and Mrs. F. D. Carpenter '10, Miss Catherine Nulty '11 and P. D. Carleton '20, executive committee. The new constitution was ratified and other business was done.

Among the Brunonians from outside Burlington who came to the meeting were Arthur L. Patch '04 and Mrs. Patch, Windsor, George L. Hunt '00 and Mrs. Hunt, Montpelier, and Leon S. Gay '06, Cavendish. The Burlington Free Press, in its account of the gathering, said: "It is hoped that in the fall a greater number of these Brown men and women may be able to assemble. Certainly, enthusiasm and good will made up for numbers at the dinner."

Who Won This Game?

Who won the final game of the baseball season against William and Mary? The editor of the Monthly has an idea about it.

The score was tied at 3-3 in the last half of the last inning. "Bucky" Wright of Brown hit a two-bagger and was safe at second. The editor sat next to Business Manager Currier of the Monthly, who is also Professor Currier of the Department of Mathematics. An undergraduate approached and said: "Excuse me, Professor, but can you tell me what McKinley's final mark is in your course?" The professor cast his gaze into the blue firmament of heaven and reflected. Then he said: "B".

For the benefit of Ye Older Graduates, let it be known that "B" is a very creditable mark indeed. The undergraduate thanked the professor and withdrew, going direct to the Brown players' bench, where McKinley was about to pick up his bat and go to the home plate. Meanwhile two Brown batsmen were put out and the score was still at 3-3, with Wright on second and two out and the end of the ninth inning at hand. McKinley thereupon faced the William and Mary pitcher and drove out what would have been a home run if it had been needed. The ball went far over toward the new gymnasium and Wright trotted home, scoring the winning run.

Class Day

Under the new arrangement, Class Day this year came on Friday. No day was ever more beautiful, a fact much appreciated by those who participated in the afternoon exercises "Under the Elms."

In greeting the audience, President William J. Cashman of the class of '28 declared that while his colleagues had no illusions as to their ability to solve the great problems of life or to point the way to Utopia, they were continuing one of the most revered traditions of the college and were gathered at a session which would long remain a fond memory.

"The accomplishments of the class of 1928 will be extolled by the class orator," he said, "our past history will be described by an eminent historian, and what we do 20 years from now will be presaged with all the finality and certainty of a class prophet."

"And so, fellow classmates, I bid you all to give ear to the record, both in poetry and prose, of your past and future attainments. And to you, our guests, I bid a cordial welcome, both in the name of the class and the University, and I express the hope that these exercises will be as conducive to your pleasure as they will be to ours."

Harold K. Halpert's class poem was a tribute to the days of light that have followed the years of darkness. In the closing stanzas he painted a picture of Brown for the men of his class to remember:

"There is a soul in colleges
And a spirit in their paths and campuses
Which we forget.
There is a life in all the varied semblances of their buildings
That is not only mortar and the yellow eyes of night,
With hallways blinded red
And the walk-corners mooned with haloed lamps,
Where the huddled secrets of the years are found at last
By a hungry eye. . . .
There is somewhat more
In the hours of morning classes
Than droning voices, cold classrooms, and half-dressed men,
There is more in the sun-bathed chairs
Than we can forget. . . .
We go forth
With a thousand hopes and remembrances
In humility,
With a man's ambition and a god's own longing,
With a love for Brown,
We shall not and cannot forget."

Samuel H. Levy, the class orator, addressed a great part of his remarks to instruction of the alumni, and urged that men who leave college, degree in hand, take a wide and liberal interest in their alma mater. He decried the practice of returning only for the "big game" and of being interested only in making a university a bigger and better sport centre.

He urged his class not to fall into the fault of getting out of touch with the college and thus becoming unsympathetic with the student body.

He touched upon Brown as a distinctive college, an institution which carved its own path along the track of life and clung to its traditions because they were its traditions. "To the extent that Brown imitates other universities, to the extent that she tries to be what they are," he declared, "to that extent she loses her distinction, to that extent she becomes immersed in that great American sea of uniformity, of standardization, which has even swept through our institutions of higher learning."

"As we labor," he said in closing, "let us retain our faith, our belief, in the University, and its traditions, that as the years roll on it may always remain truly Brown in custom, in achievement, and in genuine individuality. Then and only then will we have been faithful sons of alma mater."

The class prophecy was by Manuel J. Viera. Dr. Faunce also gave an address in his familiar happy fashion.

Sprackling on Athletic Council

William E. Sprackling 1912, Providence, has been elected a member of the University Athletic Council. He is General Manager, Tubular Woven Fabric Company, Pawtucket. He played football and basketball in college and was an assistant football coach at Brown, and member of the advisory committee on football for several years.

Swaffield, Percy Shires, J. H. Collier and E. M. Porter.

Impromptu speeches were made and class songs and cheers were given during the dinner of 1907 at the Agawam Hunt. The 14 members who attended the reunion were: Charles D. McEvoy, Passaic, N. J.; W. P. Burnham, Boston; Lloyd Champlin Eddy, Riverside; George Hurley, Claude R. Branch, Alfred H. Gurney, Robert B. Jones, W. W. Reynolds, Harold F. Miller, Dr. Frank A. Cummings, Herbert E. Harris, W. A. Schwartz, John Courtland Knowles and Myron H. S. Affleck, all of Providence.

1908

The Class of 1908 held their Twentieth Reunion at the Hotel Caledon, Narragansett Pier, from Friday to Monday, June 15 to 18. Eighteen men arrived in time for luncheon on Friday, and this was increased to over forty by midnight. In all, fifty-three men were present at some time, making the largest reunion in the history of the class. The most distant travellers were: Griffith of Chicago, Stacy of Detroit, Evans, Superintendent of Schools, Corbin, Kentucky, and Hap Hazard, who is practicing forestry in Charlottesville, Virginia. Others in attendance included Governor Norm Case, Bill Brown, Bullock, Walt Burnham, Bushnell, Carroll, Clark Collins, Paul Chipman, Clark, Cooney, Densmore, Denton, Pat Dillon, Ben Frost, Judy Ginnell, Bob Gleason, Jim Hall, Himes, Murph Honiss, Cliff Hubbard, Hunkins, Gene Jackson, Harry Jager, Bill MacDonald, Hunter Marston, Maryott, Frank Mason, Minnerley, Jimmie Murray, the Reverend Rollie Ormsbee, Bob Pinkham, Charlie Plummer, Herb Sturdy, Les Swain, Stowell, Tommy Thomas, Frank Walker, Bill Walker, Jim Whalen, Buck Whittemore, Wilmot, Cy Young. Golf, tennis, auto riding and swimming were enjoyed by day, while "in the cool of the evening" Tommy and Ormsbee led in some of the best singing heard in any class reunion. All present voted it the best reunion of the class to date, and are looking forward to an even better time on their Twenty-fifth.

BROWN ALUMNI MONTHLY

1909

The Class of 1909's Commencement party at the Jacobs Hill Hunt Club was a great success and enjoyed by all. Those who were present at some time during the week-end are as follows: Wheeler, Leach, Buss, Moffett, O. R. McCoy, Everson, Cameron, Henderson, Tanner, Goodwin, Turner, R. J. B. Sullivan, Strickler, Wells, Sykes, Nash, Hollen, R. E. Smith, Chafee, Miller, Dodge, Manter, Chambers, Seabury, Huxford, Poland, Littlefield, Richmond, Whitmarsh, Champlin, Bugbee and Fowler.

Another who returned to the ranks and was welcomed by all was Ed. Moffett, while Bob Nash from Grand Rapids, Mich., and Smith from Bridgeport were our long-distance travellers this year.

1910

The class of 1910 joined with '95, '04 and '06 in an informal reunion and dinner at the Wannamoisett Country Club Saturday evening. Of the class of '10 the following were present: William B. Freeman, Claude Wood, Clarence Richards, Richard D. Allen, Albert B. Farrell, Joseph E. Cull, Albert E. Peterson, James E. Batty, Edward S. Spicer, John P.

Hartigan, Clifton B. Ward, William E. Sweet, Elmer S. Horton, Andrew B. Comstock and Warren C. Johnson.

1913

The class of 1913 held its 15th annual reunion in Jamestown on Saturday, with headquarters at the Hotel Thorndike. There were 36 members of the class back, including John Rouse, who came from Caspar, Wyo., and F. H. Guild, who made a trip from Lawrence, Ks. There were prize tennis and golf matches, an entertainment Saturday night, and a dinner on Sunday. Those present for the reunion were McLyman, Reed, Harris, Roberts, Gardner, Granger, Morse, Buckhold, Metcalf, Davis, Thomas, two Arnolds, Taber, Langdon, Rouse, Guild, Letts, Field, Walker, Wattles, Brownville, Grout, Bohl, Munro, Lemon, Wilson, Philbrick, Tucker, Radio, Bailey, Reilly, Woodberry, Robinson, McCaull and Woodward.

Federal Judge Ira Lloyd Letts is president of the class and C. H. Philbrick is secretary.

1914

Eighteen members of the class met at the Agawam Hunt Club for their reunion. Before the dinner they serenaded the classes of 1883, 1902 and 1907.

Those who attended the 1914 reunion are: Robert S. Holding, president; J. Ira Shepard, vice president; Morgan W. Rogers, secretary and treasurer; David C. Adelman, Arthur W. Cate, Dr. Robert M. Lord, F. M. Willett, M. A. Wolf, H. L. P. Beckwith, A. E. Beacham, Frank E. McDuff, H. L. Cushing, C. L. Wooley, Roger Williams, Dr. E. A. McLaughlin and Charles E. Brady, all of Providence; Joseph Farnham, New York; E. G. MacDowell, Pittsburgh, and Zygmunt J. Czubak, Central Falls.

1916

A dinner at the Biltmore Hotel Friday night brought together the following members of the class of '16: W. L. R. McBee, South Willington, Conn.; Gordon Ewing, East Greenwich; Reginald Brackett, Chicago; W. A. Graham, F. J. Brady, Professor C. E. Ekstrom, J. W. Moore and Charles J. Hill, all of Providence.

1918

The ten-year class of 1918 established headquarters on Saturday at the Seaconnett Inn, Sakonnet Point, where the class of 1923 had installed itself the day before. Tennis, golf, swimming, baseball and motion pictures were among the entertainments provided. A baseball game between '23 and '18 resulted in victory for the five-year class. The class of '18 also lost the tennis championship to the class of '20, which occupied the Stone House at Sakonnet Point. A golf tournament for members of all three classes was declared a draw when the supply of balls ran out.

At its dinner Saturday night the class of '18 awarded the prize for travelling the longest distance to Malcolm Hylan of Boulder, Col., who covered 30 miles more in coming to the reunion than Cerelle Fay of Denver. "Jim" Bennett of Washington and Dwight Colley of Providence won the awards for the members having the oldest children. Assistant City Solicitor Munroe of Providence was the only member boasting a set of twins, Cyrus Flanders of Hartford, with three children, claimed the largest family. Dwight Colley is the longest-married member of the class.

Those in attendance were Gordon C. Parker, I. G. Smith, R. A. Gladue, Floyd C. Fay, Jr., William M. Fay, Clifton I. Munroe, Malcolm C. Hylan, James E. Paige, Cyrus G. Flanders, Albert E. Pearson, Frederick N. Tompkins, Horace C. Jeffers, J. V. Bennett, A. R. Chick, J. McDowell, R. Bosworth, Wardwell C. Leonard, Gurney Edwards, O. R. Lindsley, William A. Maguire, James F. Armstrong, Dwight T. Colley, M. Joseph Cummings, Jr., Charles H. Vehse, Mason C. Hill, Chauncey Langdon, Harleigh V. S. Tingley, Winn W. Chase and Paul Grimes.

1920

The class of 1920 held its reunion at Sakonnet Point. Those present were John Winthrop De Wolf, Jr., Lawrence R. Smith, William Dewart, James Sinclair, A. N. MacDougall, Henry C. Aylesworth, John A. McGhee, Lou Pieri, Charles H. Lawton, Jr., Stanley A. Dore, Herbert Barlow and Walter Hoving.

1923

The reunion of the class of 1923 began on Friday at Sakonnet Point and continued through Sunday.

Members of the class to return were Mian Gulian, Ernest J. Woelfel, Norman J. Paasche, Robert Adams, William B. McCormick, Harold K. Larson, Herbert E. Van Hoesen, J. Henry Hagan, Richard D.

Smith, Lawrence McCarthy, Robert L. McCarty, Jr., F. Allen, Jr., M. P. Newsome, J. S. Parker, W. C. Worthington, Harvey S. Reynolds, R. C. Lawson, Walter F. Waldau, Stephen A. McClellan, E. John Lownes, Jr., L. A. Legris, D. Doyle, R. E. Soderback, J. F. Trainer, W. C. Roux, M. E. Earle, E. W. Lincoln, C. A. Braitsch, J. D. E. Jones, Jr., R. Almy, D. K. Bartlett, Jr., Roger L. Horton, R. C. Litchfield, E. H. Bowen.

1924-1925

The classes of 1924 and 1925 combined for a dinner and reunion in the grill room of the Wannamoisett Country Club Saturday night.

The following members of the class of 1924 returned: Robert H. Goff, Charles Young, Warren Thatcher, Warren Sanford, George H. Hunt, Carleton H. Bliss, Edward R. Place, Moore Fletcher, Dennis Greene, George Gildoll, William Fletcher, Roland Sidall, Jack Lubrano, Gordon Bigelow, Everett B. McAlevy, John Cotton, John Lyman, M. G. Bigelow and Earl C. Drake.

Gifts at Commencement

Gifts to the University aggregating $277,010 were announced by President Faunce on Commencement afternoon. Included in the list was a carillon of bells to be placed in the Carrie Tower. These will be similar to those recently given to the Park Avenue Baptist Church in New York city and will be cast at Croyden, England. They are the gift of Lucian Sharpe '93, who gave the University the great organ in Sayles Hall. Other gifts are as follows:

Oscar L. Straus Fund: Received under the will of Oscar H. Straus, $10,000.

Frank L. Day Fund: Received under the will of Frank L. Day, $140,000.

Stephen H. Arnold Fund: Received under the will of Mary E. Arnold, in memory of Stephen H. Arnold, $1000.

Hamilton B. Staples Fund: Received from the estate of Francis H. Staples, $5000.

James Aldrich Pirce: Received from Florence Pirce to establish this fund, $1000.

Addition to Hazard Professorship of Physics: Received from Caroline Hazard, $8720.

Arthur Edward Breckenridge Fund: Received from members of the family to establish this fund, $500.

William Overton Scholarship Fund: Received through Roscoe M. Dexter, $500.

Theodore B. Stowell Fund: Received balance of one-half of residue of estate of Florence A. Stowell, $2790.44.

Francis Edwin Hoppin Scholarship: Received from Mrs. E. A. H. Gammell to establish this fund, $5000.

Amelia Maxcy Daggett Sheffield Fund for the Women's College, $1000.

Physics Research Fund: Received from friends of the University for research assistants for the department of physics for the year 1928-29, $1500.

From the estate of Benjamin M. Jackson, of which Brown University is one of the residuary legatees, $50,000.

The will of the late Charles L. Baker of Fall River provides a fund of $40,000 for Brown University, subject temporarily to an annuity obligation and provides a possible subsequent addition of $10,000.

Class of 1903 Scholarship, $5000.

Brown Alumni Loyalty Fund, $35,000.

Alfred G. Langley Fund: Received under the will of Alfred G. Langley, $2600.

The Appleton Club

A pleasant session of the John H. Appleton Club was held on the evening of June 15 at the Wannamoisett Country Club in Rumford. Following dinner the gathering was addressed by A. W. Claflin, toastmaster, and Professor Appleton, Jesse Melendy of the General Chemical Company and Professor C. A. Kraus, director of the research laboratory at Brown University. During the evening a letter from Senator Jesse H. Metcalf was read in which he expressed his regret at not being able to attend the annual reunion, owing to the Republican convention at Kansas City.

Those present included Professor John Howard Appleton, S. T. Arnold, E. K. Bacon, Paul P. Bien, L. A. Bigelow, M. S. Bloom, Leon Brower, W. W. Brown, E. S. Carney, R. F. Chambers, Albert W. Claflin, Harry Eatough, Albert P. Farwell, L. S. Foster, F. H. Franklin, R. C. Fuller, William W. Hawes, J. C. Hostetter, William M. Jackson, Harold Kinder, C. A. Kraus, R. K. Lyons, E. S. McColey, Dean Richardson, Robert Meader, J. G. Melendy, T. C. Morris, H. N. Nicholas, H. S. Nutting, E. F. Parmenter, E. M. Phillips, J. C. Pickering, H. B. Pray, Charles A. Potter, N. W. Rakesraw, W. M. Saunders, E. K. Strachan, G. E. Wilson, C. Wooster, E. S. Worth, and Messrs. Kahler, Kline, Seward, Smith and Teal.

Ivy Day

Elizabeth Georgianna Herr, Senior President at the Women's College, welcomed the gathering at Alumnae Hall on Ivy Day and gave the class history. Dorothea Delano Luce addressed the undergraduates and an orchestra played during the program.

Following the exercises in Alumnae Hall, the ceremony of planting the class ivy was carried out on the campus. Mary Mather Brownell of the class of 1928 presented the trowel to the class of 1929. Annette Ayer Sheridan '29 accepted the trowel for her class.

Dean Morriss discussed the advantages of affiliated colleges over co-ed-educational colleges and separate colleges for women, declaring her belief that the solution to problems in women's education lies in the affiliated college. Her address is printed in full in this number of the Monthly. Dr. Faunce also spoke.

Officers of the class of 1928 are: President, Elizabeth Georgianna Herr; Vice President, Julia Ayer Oldham; Secretary, Olive Mann Lombard; Treasurer, Doris Madeleine Hopkins.

The Ivy Day committee included Elizabeth Carlyle Sanderson, chairman; Farrior Brown, Elizabeth Georgianna Herr, Olive Mann Lombard, Mary Louise Mulgrew and Annette Cora Rivard.

The Ivy Night committee consisted of Dorothea Delano Luce, chairman; Mary Mather Brownell, Elizabeth Georgianna Herr, Doris Madeleine Hopkins, Alice Elizabeth O'Connor, Nathalie Fort Peugnet.

Phi Beta Kappa

Rhode Island Alpha of Phi Beta Kappa elected at Commencement time the following officers: President, W. H. P. Faunce '80; Vice President, Charles E. Hughes '81; Secretary, W. T. Hastings '03; Treasurer, W. W. Moss '94; Historian, Professor W. H. Munro '70; Auditor, C. R. Branch '07. A special committee was named to plan for the 100th anniversary of the Rhode Island Alpha, which will be held in 1930. The committee comprises Professor Albert K. Potter '86, chairman; Professor C. Raymond Adams '18, secretary; Judge Chester W. Barrows '95, Rev. Dr. Clarence M. Gallup '96, Arthur M. Allen '97, and the President and Secretary of the chapter, ex-officio.

Henry D. Sharpe, chairman of the committee on endowment, reported that the chapter had far exceeded its quota in the national campaign by raising the sum of $111,534. Only one other chapter in the country, that of William and Mary College, reached its quota in the campaign.

Pi Kappa

Twelve members of the class of 1930 were elected to membership of Pi Kappa, and tapped by retiring members of the organization at the Junior Promenade, on the evening of May 11: N. P. Arnold, Wakefield, Mass.; J. O. Clark, Jr., Glen Campbell, Pennsylvania; C. H. Edwards, Chicago; D. A. Kelley, Cleveland; Otto Kerner, Jr., Chicago; P. M. Lingham, Littleton, Mass.; J. C. Mosby, Webster Groves, Mo.; N. H. Munson, Jr., Belmont, Mass.; C. T. Russell, Lynn, Mass.; H. R. Smith, Stratford, Conn.; R. B. Dimond, New York city, and D. E. Alper, Brookline, Mass.

Professor Walcott's New Work

The sum of $10,000 has recently been granted to the American Philosophical Association by the Carnegie Corporation of New York city for the preparation of a series of Source Books in the History of the Sciences under the general editorship of Professor Gregory D. Walcott of Hamline University, St. Paul, Minn., assisted by a staff of well-known educators.

The several volumes, as planned, will present the most important contributions of the most eminent scientists from the Renaissance to the present. Seven different fields of science are being covered by special committees of prominent scientists, and volumes will appear, it is believed, on the average of one each year. The first volume on astronomy, under the supervision of Professor Harlow Shapley of Harvard University, will be ready for publication within the next few months.

The Brown Flying Club

Editor Brown Alumni Monthly:

The Brown Daily Herald of May 22 stated that "Another hope of success for the Brown Flying Club may be entertained by reason of the steady rise of the Harvard Flying Club at Cambridge." This is a very good point, but I have never heard of anyone obtaining success by idly watching someone else. It will be necessary for the Brown organization to do plenty of work on its own volition.

The club is a regular non-athletic activity in the college. The only impediment to its rapid progress is the lack of equipment. The personnel is solidly organized and on a firm financial basis, so far as it goes. The undergraduates have worked to the limit, contributing both time and money. But this is not enough to insure the obtaining of adequate equipment and facilities.

The club must now appeal to the alumni body. This is not a "charity" appeal in any sense. The Flying Club, when it is able to carry out its full program, will thoroughly train men in all branches of aviation. The knowledge and experience which an undergraduate gains through his membership will fit him upon graduation to step into a responsible position in the field. Realizing this, many colleges, and also secondary schools, are including courses in aviation in their regular curriculum.

The success of the club now rests in the manner in which this appeal is accepted. The possibilities are unlimited. The club has secured the services of a competent pilot and instructor. The club as it now stands represents the possible nucleus of the finest organization of its kind in the country. Why not give it a little co-operation? R. E. Purinton '30

Notes of the Month

W. W. Elton '29 of Seacliffe, N.

Y., will be editor in chief of next year's Liber.

C. C. Barrows '29 will lead the swimming team next year and P. M. Lingham '30 will captain the hockey team.

It is reported that several fraternities have had plans drawn for new chapter houses or extensive improvements to the old ones.

Moses Brown Graduates

Moses Brown School at Providence graduated 35 young men last month, of whom 13 plan to enter Brown. The list is as follows:

Gerald Wilcox Adams, Brown.
Sydney John Andrews, Brown.
Frederick Carlton Burk.

Faculty

Professor Jacob D. Tamarkin of the Mathematics Department was elected a Fellow in the section of Mathematics and Astronomy of the American Academy of Arts and Sciences at the 148th annual meeting of the Academy in Boston on May 11. Dean R. G. D. Richardson of the Graduate School and Professor Raymond C. Archibald are Fellows in this same section. The other Fellows of the Academy on the Faculty are Dr. Carl Barus, Dr. A. D. Mead, vice president, Professors Charles A. Kraus, E. B. Delabarre and F. G. Allinson.

Professor James Quayle Dealey and Henry B. Gardner received desk writing sets from the members of the Class of 1928 at the last chapel service of the year. Stephen I. Hall, editor-in-chief of the Brown Daily Herald, made the speech of presentation, saying "the Class of 1928 want you to know that we appreciate not only the practical learning that you have imparted to us, and by which we shall benefit, but also your contribution to the cumulative knowledge of mankind."

Professor Gardner was the guest of prominent business men of Providence at a dinner at Agawam Hunt Club on May 16, 1928, and his hosts gave him a bronze statuette as an expression of their gratitude for his assistance in helping solve commercial problems of their own and of the city. Members of the Department of Economics and the Brown Bureau of Business Research were also present. Zenas W. Bliss '16, honorary, was toastmaster, and the speakers were Frank A. Page '01, Collector of Internal Revenue, Arthur L. Philbrick '03 and Professor James P. Adams.

A dinner was given in honor of Professor Dealey by members of the class of 1890 at the University Club on April 19.

Professor Theodore Collier of the Department of History spoke in Norwich, Conn., on May 23 under the auspices of the Norwich College Club and the Norwich Near East Relief Association. Professor Collier, according to the Norwich Bulletin, emphasized the great influence of the American colleges in the Near East and "the important work they are doing to bring young people of 28 nationalities to a better understanding of one another."

Dr. Harry Lyman Koopman, the University librarian, read a paper on "Reading, the Unsociable Art," at the 50th annual meeting of the American Library Association held at West Baden, Ind., the last week in May. Six delegates appointed by the Mexican Minister of Education were at the gathering.

Professor Kendall K. Smith, head of the Department of Greek and Latin Classics, gave the address at the annual graduation exercises of the Rhode Island School of Design on May 29. The School of Design and the University have much in common, and Professor Smith's choice as speaker on this occasion was a happy one.

Hamilton College gave the degree of doctor of literature last month to Professor Theodore Collier of Brown. He is a Hamilton '94 man.

Alumni

1866

Rev. Lucian Drury, Pastor Emeritus of the Third Baptist Church of North Stonington, Conn., died suddenly at his home, Wednesday, June 6, 1928. Mr. Drury was born in Wendell, Mass., September 3, 1841. He was graduated from Suffield School, then the Connecticut Literary Institution, in 1862, and at the time of his death was the oldest living graduate of the school. He received his A. B. at Brown in 1866, later winning the degree of M. A., and graduated from Newton Theological Institution in 1869. He was ordained to the Baptist ministry in 1870 in Winchendon, Mass., where he was pastor for two years. His successive pastorates were at Swampscott, Mass., Danvers, Mass., Apopka, Fla., Bellingham, Mass., North Swansea, Mass., and the Third Baptist Church of North Stonington, Conn. He was twice married, first in Swampscott, Mass., Sept. 20, 1874, to Phoebe M. Williams, who died in Swansea, Mass., in 1904. He married Alison E. Coates, of North Stonington, Nov. 16, 1907, and she survives him, together with his two sons, L. Lorimer Drury '02 of Mount Hermon, Mass., and Harold W. Drury '04 of Wellesley, Mass. He also leaves six grandchildren. The funeral service, held on Saturday, June 9, was conducted by Rev. George R. Atha '95 of Groton, Conn., assisted by the Rev. Clayton A. Burdick, D. D., of Westery, R. I., and Rev. Ivor Partington, pastor of the Congregational Church, North Stonington.

Arthur Lewis Brown's long and useful career as jurist and public citizen came to an end in Providence on June 10, 1928. Judge Brown had been in poor health for most of the months since his retirement from the Federal bench last July, and his death did not surprise any of his close friends. His loss is a real one to Providence and to the legal profession. "A jurist without a peer in New England, a wise and trusted adviser," was the estimate of him by Governor Norman S. Case '08, and a true and apt one we consider it. Judge Brown served more than thirty years on the Federal bench, was a pioneer in making decisions and had the distinction of being the recipient of two honorary degrees from Alma Mater, an A. M. in 1894 and an LL. D. in 1907. He was born in Providence, Nov. 28, 1854, the son of Samuel W. and Mary Elizabeth (Thurber) Brown. He came to College Hill from the Providence High School and after graduation studied law in the office of Thurston & Ripley. He continued his studies at Boston University Law School, from which he received his L. B. in 1878. Following admission to the Rhode Island bar in June, 1878, he opened his own office for the practice of law. Shortly, however, he formed a partnership with Congressman Henry J. Spooner '60 and Augustus S. Miller '71. Congressman Spooner later retired and the firm continued as Miller & Brown until its dissolution by mutual consent in 1895. In the next year President Cleveland named Judge Brown to the United States Circuit Court for Rhode Island; and Judge Brown remained on the bench until June 30, 1927, when he retired and Ira Lloyd Letts '13 took his place. On his retirement he resumed practice and also acted as consultant on Federal law. During his years of outstanding service he had also sat in Massachusetts in the Circuit Court and the Circuit Court of Appeals. In 1911 he was the Democratic nominee for United States Senator from Rhode Island, but he made no effort to win the election. Judge Brown was married Feb. 12, 1885, to Cora Elizabeth Aylsworth, and she survives him, together with a son, Aylsworth Brown '06, a daughter, Mrs. William Hale Berry of New York, a brother, Walter Francis Brown '73, and three sisters. He belonged to Phi Beta Kappa and Theta Delta Chi and was a trustee of the Providence Public Library. He was, as the Providence Journal said editorially, "literally learned in the law. . . . He made warm friendships; his courtesy was of the so-called old-fashioned, stately school."

Dr. Arthur H. Harrington and Dr. Walter L. Munro sailed on June 23 for a three months' tour in Europe.

Presiding Justice Willard B. Tanner delivered an address at the laying of the cornerstone of the new courthouse in Providence in June.

1881

Charles Evans Hughes received the honorary degree of Doctor of Civil Law from New York University on June 6, last. The citation read in part: "Graduate of Brown University and of Columbia, jurist and statesman, held in high honor by his countrymen, and arbiter of peace among the nations."

1886

William Allan Dyer, chairman of the $2,500,000 fund-raising campaign which made the building possible, took a prominent part in the laying of the corner stone of the Syracuse Memorial Hospital, Syracuse, N. Y., June 8, last. Thirteen thousand subscribers contributed to the fund, and Mr. Dyer saw to it that their names were placed in the metal box in the stone.

1890

Professor Charles H. Forbes of Andover Academy was a Commencement visitor at Brown. Forbes is the beneficiary of the first of eight $160,000 teaching foundations lately established at Andover.

The fourth volume of Letters of Members of the Continental Congress (1779), edited by Dr. Edmund C. Burnett of the Department of Historical Research, Carnegie Institution of Washington, has recently been issued. Dr. Burnett is at work on the fifth volume.

Dr. Harry Linwood Grant divides his time between the University Club, his house at South Swansea, Mass., and his city headquarters on Angell street. His engagement to Miss Florence Pirce, sister of James A. Pirce '92, was announced on June 29.

Rev. William T. Green was at the Class Day exercises "under the elms," and Irving E. Walker was on hand at Commencement.

Present at the dinner to Dealey, April 19: Alger, Eddy, Grant, Guild, Owen, Palmer, Rhodes, Stiness and Watjen.

Alfred S. Johnson has returned from a long visit in Florida, spent with his brother, Ernest H. Johnson '91, who was and still is seriously ill.

Tracey Lansing Newton is with the traffic department of the New Haven railroad at Providence.

Telephone service, a public trust

An Advertisement of the American Telephone and Telegraph Company

THE widespread ownership of the Bell Telephone System places an obligation on its management to guard the savings of its hundreds of thousands of stockholders.

Its responsibility for so large a part of the country's telephone service imposes an obligation that the service shall always be adequate, dependable and satisfactory to the user.

The only sound policy that will meet these obligations is to continue to furnish the best possible service at the lowest cost consistent with financial safety.

There is then in the Bell System no incentive to earn speculative or large profits. Earnings must be sufficient to assure the best possible service and the financial integrity of the business. Anything in excess of these requirements goes toward extending the service or keeping down the rates.

This is fundamental in the policy of the company.

The Bell System's ideal is the same as that of the public it serves—the most telephone service and the best, at the least cost to the user. It accepts its responsibility for a nation-wide telephone service as a public trust.

tician, research specialist and public accountant at 520 High st., West Medford, Mass. He attended Commencement.

Rev. Herman W. Watjen suffered the loss of his wife a few months ago.

Walter A. Presbrey, chairman of the Providence Board of Police Commissioners, has recovered from a long and serious illness and was on the campus on Commencement Day.

Professor-emeritus James Quayle Dealey will do special writing for the Dallas (Texas) News, of which his brother, George B. Dealey, is the executive head. Professor and Mrs. Dealey will make their home in Dallas.

Weldon A. Duley, former member of the class, has been appointed assistant secretary to Mayor Nichols of Boston. Duley has been active in the Republican party in Boston for many years.

1896

Rev. John M. Hunt is pastor of the first Methodist Episcopal Church, Hightstown, N. J.

Rev. Frederick W. Jones, formerly of Kerrville, Texas, has arrived with his family in Providence, where he will make his home, serve as rector of St. Thomas's Episcopal Church, oversee the diocesan publicity work and edit the Diocesan Record. He has a wife and two daughters, the latter being 11 and 7 respectively.

Dr. James M. Kent, alias Jimmy, has given up his office at 30 East 40th st., New York, and has resigned as chief examiner for the New England Mutual Life Insurance Company to devote his time to the direction of the medical department of the Equitable Trust Company of New York. The company is now housed in its new building, 11 Broad st., and the medical department in this fine banking structure is a completely equipped medical and hospital unit with ten beds.

Lieutenant Colonel George A. Taylor, U. S. A., now stationed in Cincinnati, O., was the author of a poem, "Romagne-sous-Montfaucon," which was printed in the Army and Navy Register for May 26. One of George's hobbies (the other is being a football referee) is writing verse, and this latest product of his pen is excellent.

Can any one in the class give the Alumni Office information about Charles W. Brooks or William S. Blake, long on the "missing" list? Both have resisted all direct efforts to find them.

Harvey N. Davis, president-elect of Stevens Institute of Technology, has two honorary degrees to take to Hoboken with him. He received an LL. D. from Rutgers, where he spoke at Commencement, and an Sc. D. from Brown—and right happy we were when we learned that he was one of the men to be honored by Alma Mater.

The Alumni Office has confirmed the report of the death of Dr. Howard P. Blanchard in Laconia, N. H., on Jan. 24, 1928. Blanchard had suffered since 1909 from nervous trouble which made it impossible for him to continue his medical work. He was born in Sandwich, N. H., Aug. 16, 1877, the son of James Wilson and Julia (Parker) Blanchard. He prepared at Holten High School, Danvers, Mass., took his A. B. with the class in 1901 and entered Harvard Medical School in 1904. He went to the Lynn, Mass., Hospital after receiving his M. D., and remained there for one year. In 1909 he passed the New York State examinations and practiced for several years in New York city before illness forced him to give up. He was never married. One brother, Percy W. Blanchard, two half-brothers, Leroy K. Blanchard and Webster L. Blanchard, and a half-sister, Ruth B. Norburg, survive him.

Professor Lester B. Shippee's new house address is Como Station, St. Paul, Minn. Shippee is a member of the Faculty of the University of Minnesota, with history as his subject, and he tells us that at Como Station he is raising chickens to keep him occupied in his spare time.

1904

A newspaper despatch from Denver last month told of the death of Philip T. Gleason in a motor accident. There will be something about Phil's career in the October number of the Monthly. His two brothers, Clarence '04 and Robert '08, survive him; and to them our sympathy is given.

It was a real pleasure to hear a short time ago from Grant Martin, who is teaching English at Occidental College, Pasadena, Cal. Grant said that he was looking for a pulmotor to "put some breath of life into our Southern California alumni organization," and it looks as if we'd have to go out there next winter to supply it.

Through W. G. Meader, the University has received a collection of war curios made by the late Charlie Seddon while Charlie was serving with the A. E. F. in France. The collection is the gift of Charlie's mother, Mrs. E. M. Stubbs of Litchfield, Me., who sent it to Meader. It includes many interesting mementoes and, as President Faunce said, "the gift is new evidence of the loyalty which Seddon and his family have felt for the University and his college class."

At chapel service Tuesday, May 29, President Faunce presented the 1907 Scholarship award to Richard Carver Gurney '28, son of Sanford K. Gurney '97, football and baseball player and Rhodes Scholar-elect from Rhode Island. The scholarship, as most of us know, is awarded to the Senior who "combines in a high degree scholastic ability, athletic ability, and character," and Gurney assuredly measures up to these requirements. He is the fourth man to win the scholarship, his predecessors being Parkman Sayward '25, Mark F. Coles '26 and F. Miles Flint '27.

Walter C. (Cliff) Slade is the new president of the New England Railway Club, having been elected at the meeting in May at the Copley-Plaza, Boston. The club is made up of executives of street railways in New England and has been a going concern for the last 28 years.

Leon Payne, credit manager of the Carnegie Steel Company, has been elected a director of the Diamond National Bank, one of the progressive institutions in Leon's adopted city of Pittsburgh.

Sam Compton's new house address is Route 1, Box 37, East Falls Church, Va. Sam is still teaching school, the profession which he entered immediately after graduation.

Bill Reynolds tells us that his new public golf course, which he has been constructing for the past year on an old farm three miles from Providence and the same distance from Pawtucket, is coming along as well as can be expected. Of course all of the golfers in the class will want to try it out as soon as it is playable.

Dr. Asa S. Briggs, superintendent of the Rhode Island State Home and School, has resigned, the resignation to be effective this month. He has done a splendid work at the school, and we can only echo what the Providence Evening Bulletin said of him editorially: "Dr. Briggs is the type of man who inspires confidence in and respect for public welfare work. We have not enough of them in our State institutions. It is too bad that he is going."

Dr. Louis J. Gillespie, associate professor of physico-chemical research, Massachusetts Institute of Technology, has been elected a Fellow of the American Academy of Arts and Sciences.

C. C. Hubbard, Professor of History and Political Science at Wheaton College, Norton, Mass., is the author of one of the chapters in the second volume of the "Commonwealth History of Massachusetts," edited by Professor Albert Bushnell Hart of Harvard. He is also writing a chapter for the next volume, to appear in due course.

Johnny Bunker, otherwise Dr. John W. M. Bunker, associate professor of physiology and biochemistry at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, where in recent years he has been doing valuable research work with regard to vitamins, is now a Fellow of the American Academy of Arts and Sciences. Johnny had this honor bestowed upon him at the last annual meeting of the Academy in Boston.

Clarence Whipple reports his home address as being 256 Rutledge ave., East Orange, N. J. Clarence, who is in the law department of the Indemnity Insurance Company of North America, has his office at 122 William st., New York.

Clarence Johnson has received the degree of doctor of philosophy in sociology at the University of Southern California.

Harold Tanner has been elected President of the Providence Y. M. C. A. for the year 1928-29. John Wells was a member of the nominating committee that secured Harold's acceptance for this office.

Omar R. McCoy is superintendent of schools in the Hope Valley district of Rhode Island and all were glad to see him on Commencement Day.

Howard K. Jackson and his family have changed their residence in Chicago to 1263 Pratt boulevard, Apt. 814.

W. B. Drayton Henderson has been promoted from assistant professor to professor of English at Dartmouth, the promotion to become effective next September.

1911

Charles P. Sisson attended the Republican National Convention as a delegate from Rhode Island. He had the pleasure of voting with the majority to seat a group of delegates from Texas whose status was contested. One of the delegates so seated was a fellow classmate, Edgar J. Marston, who is President of the Texas Coal and Iron Co., and is rapidly becoming one of the best known business executives in the great Southwest.

Other 1911 men in Kansas City included B. Haywood Hagerman, President of the James B. Welsh Realty Co., and Rev. W. J. Hastie, one of the prominent persons of the convention city. Bob Mahoney, 1912, of Tulsa, Oklahoma, looked in on his friends in the Rhode Island delegation. He and brother Dan are in the oil business.

Charles A. Malloy is practicing law with his offices in the Broad Street Bank building, Trenton, and is living at 20 Lincoln ave., Lambertville, N. J.

A cheering note from Art Newell, Professor of History and International Relations at Robert College Constantinople, reached the Alumni Office last month. Art said that he'd "like to be with you at Commencement," and admitted that the new arrangement for the week looked good to him. He added that he wished most of us Brown men could see Robert College, which is exerting a strong influence in the Near East.

Roland Morgan, former member of the class, is department manager of the L. A. Young Steel & Wire Corporation, with his headquarters at 900 High st., Oakland, Cal.

Howard F. Parker's home address is 1139 Hillside ave., Plainfield, N. J.

Louis I. Newman, Rabbi of Temple Emanu-El, San Francisco, delivered the baccalaureate sermon at the Commencement exercises of the University of California at the Greek Theatre, Berkeley, Sunday, May 13. Louis received his master's degree from California in 1917 for a volume in the semi-centennial anniversary series, written jointly with Professor William Popper on the subject, "Studies in Biblical Parallelisms."

Earl H. Walker is now with the Curtin-Howe Corporation at 11 Park place, New York.

1915

Leslie T. Little is librarian of the Public Library, Waltham, Mass., and is living at 91 Claremont st., that city.

C. C. Chen, head of the Department of Biology, Shanghai College, was one of the Chinese delegates to the Jerusalem Conference of the American Baptist Foreign Mission Society and returned home by way of this country after attending two big Baptist conventions last month. Mrs. Chen, who also received her education in the United States, is chairman of the national executive committee of the Chinese Y. W. C. A.

Rowland Hughes, who is with the International Banking Corporation, has removed from Spring Valley to 5 Crown Court, Mamaroneck Knolls, Mamaroneck, N. Y.

Newton Leonard, teacher of chemistry at Hope High School, Providence, was an Alumni Office visitor just before Commencement. He told us that he expected to spend most of the summer selling real estate down Portsmouth, R. I., way to keep in condition for his next academic year.

Professor Thomas H. Robinson of the Rhode Island College of Education gave the address at the graduating exercises of the Community School of Religious Education, held in Manning Hall on the campus on May 24.

Anybody in the class know the whereabouts of Francis C. Healey? The Alumni Office has been trying to get a line on Healey for some time without success, and would appreciate any help or information with regard to the missing man.

1918

Harold A. McKay is manager of the Liability Department, Travelers Insurance Co., Rochester, N. Y.

Atmore E. Griffin has changed his address from Wanaque to Riverdale, N. J., and, as we try to pronounce the first-named place, we don't blame him for moving.

1919

Ensign Paul Crandall, U. S. N., was recently detached from duty at the Naval Torpedo Station, Newport, and assigned to the battleship Arkansas.

Andy Hillhouse, with the Great Atlantic & Pacific Tea Co., has transferred his base of activities from Cleveland, O., to Pittsburgh, Pa., and has already become a member of the Brown University Club of Pittsburgh.

Beale Gordon is assistant to the purchasing agent, Saco Lowell Shops, manufacturers of textile machinery, with his office at 147 Milk st., Boston. Beale has been with the same concern since June, 1920.

Harold S. Litchfield's paper, "The Most Economical Power Factor for Alternating Current Distribution Circuits," won the first prize offered this year by the American Institute for Electrical Engineers. The prize has considerable monetary value, but the honor of winning it will also be appreciated by Harold's friends who are familiar with the difficulties that have beset him since he first entered Brown in 1912 and have followed him in his nervous breakdown that has now kept him in bed for practically five years. Only in spells could he accomplish anything involving mental work, and nothing requiring physical strength.

John Harriman was looking over the campus last month and calling on some of his old college chums. He's been studying at Harvard for his master's degree in business administration.

V. T. Dimitroff, lately with the Highlands Hospital, Rochester, N. Y., began his duties last month as pathologist at the Hudson City Hospital, Hudson, N. Y.

James Quayle Dealey, Jr., is following in the footsteps of his father. Having received his Ph.D. at Harvard, he has become a member of the Faculty of Western Reserve University, Cleveland, O., with the title of Assistant Professor of International Relations. Jim will teach at the summer session at Reserve in order to get in shape for the work of the next academic year.

1921

George Bickwit, whose address has been missing at the Alumni Office, is with Leonard Bickwit & Co., public accountants, 271 Madison ave., Room 605, New York. Until recently, we hear, George was resident auditor of the Alamac Hotel.

Eddie Phelps is with William Filene Sons Co. (but he doesn't tell us in which department) and is living at 7A Walnut st., Boston.

Lloyd Ely, former member of the class, who took his degree at Sheffield Scientific School, Yale, is with the Textile Development Co., 80 Federal st., Boston, so we learn.

Austin Davies tells us that he is educational director of the Public Charities Association, Philadelphia, with his business address at 311 South Juniper st. He and Mrs. Davies live at 2 Bartol ave., Ridley Park, Pa.

Bill Blake is sales promotion manager with the United Soda Fountain Co., 130 Lincoln st., Allston, Mass., and unless we are much mistaken, Bill probably gets all the soda he wants to drink for nothing. He is living with Mrs. Blake at 21 Dixwell ave., Quincy, Mass.

Jerome West is managing the Walk-Over shoe store in Worcester, Mass., but he tells us that he still claims Providence as his home town.

Jack McCraw is now New England representative for the Illustrated Current News, Inc., of New Haven, Conn., and has his bachelor quarters at 25 Trowbridge st., Cambridge, Mass. Jack's office is at 18 Tremont st., Room 1040, Boston, and we hear that he has a flock of salesmen in Maine, New Hampshire, Vermont and Massachusetts under his wing.

Ed Walmsley, who has been an instructor in the economics department at Cleary College, Ypsilanti, Mich.,

will become a member of the Faculty of the University of Chattanooga, Chattanooga, Tenn., next academic year.

Larry Whitcomb is spending the summer down in the mountains of Pennsylvania doing field work in connection with his geology study at Princeton. Larry called at the Alumni Office just before Commencement and gave us some lively bits about native life as he has observed it in the Pennsylvania country. We told him about Ralph Brown's engagement, and Larry couldn't quite believe it.

H. F. Manchester, Jr., who is selling insurance for the Equitable Life of New York in Providence, served for nearly six months recently—on and off, that is—as a member of the Federal petit jury. He had plenty of good Brown company in the court room, with Ira Lloyd Letts '13 as Judge and Fred Perkins '19 and Russ Jones '21 as assistant district attorneys.

Bill Posey is sales manager of the Pacific Northwest territory for the Standard Sanitary Mfg. Co., with which he has been affiliated for the last five years. Bill's business address is 1242 First ave., South, Seattle, Wash., and he and Mrs. Posey are living in the same city.

Mort MacLeod is still hard at it as a civil engineer, his headquarters being 925 Southern Pacific bldg., Houston, Tex.

Ronald B. Smith, who received his LL.B. from Harvard in June, 1927, was admitted to the Rhode Island bar last May and is now associated with the firm of Edwards & Angell, 15 Westminster st., in the practice of law.

Bob Litchfield is in the auditing department of the Graybar Electric Co., Graybar building, Lexington ave. and 43rd st., New York.

Ralph Hughes, former member of the class, is clerk at the Samoset House, Plymouth, Mass. Ralph was down in Florida when the boom came—and when the boom collapsed—and he says that he is glad to be back in the North again.

"Peg," otherwise Lawrence C. Elmendorf, is a salesman with the Lehigh Coal & Navigation Co., and he reports that his present address is 34 Waterman st., Providence.

Walter Fenner is an outside plant

1924

Gordon E. Bigelow received his B. D. degree from Crozer Theological Seminary, Chester, Pa., last month. During his course at the seminary, Gordon was an assistant at the Baptist Temple in Philadelphia and he will continue at that church as associate pastor, the reports say.

Ev Alden requests that his mail (bills, of course, omitted) be sent in care of the Vacuum Oil Co., 61 Broadway, New York.

George Ham was an Alumni Office visitor last month. He has been with the Jones Bros. Tea Company, New York, in the auditing department, but was looking for a place in the same kind of work nearer Providence. The arrival of George's first daughter, reported elsewhere, was cause for congratulations all around.

Walt Smith is an assistant with the advertising agency of Edward H. Acree, 175 Fifth ave., New York. Walt has been with the Travelers' Insurance Co., and Abraham & Straus, Inc., Brooklyn, since he went away from College Hill.

"Lee" Smith, wife and son of the same name, are happy and contented to be teaching in Iquique, Chile, English College, under the Methodist Episcopal Board of Foreign Missions, so "Lee" wrote not long ago on the back of the card reminding him of his contribution to the Alumni Loyalty Fund. He's been down there in Chile since October, 1925.

Ruskin Schwartz has completed a three-year course at the Philadelphia Textile School, specializing during his last two years in woolen and worsted manufacturing in all of its aspects. Styles are his hobby, he told us, and maybe we can persuade him to design a few that will appeal to more of us sober-minded chaps than the present styles do.

Larry Hadley is now associated with Hemphill, Noyes & Co., 50 Federal st., Boston, as a bond salesman. Larry is living at 14 Hale st., Leominster, Mass., and he reports that his three months' old son is growing fast and "will, I hope, eventually become a student at Brown."

Adolph Eckstein looked in at the Alumni Office not long ago to say hello and to report that he had finished his third year at Harvard Medical School and would begin immediately to get practical experience in a Boston hospital. In recent summers "Eck" has been hot on the trail of mosquitoes in Providence, and our guess is that the mosquitoes will act a lot more vicious now that "Eck" is busy in Boston.

Ev Marten, secretary of the Brown Club in Cleveland, O., and public relations man with the Cleveland Community Fund, came back for Commencement and found time enough to talk with us about affairs in his home city.

MECHANICS NATIONAL BANK

34 DORRANCE STREET

PROVIDENCE, R. I.

Malcolm Graham is down in Almirante, Panama, so a card politely informs us, as a member of the accounting department of the United Fruit Co.

Joe Kaplan is in the credit department of Herman Cohen & Co., 515 Broadway, New York, and is studying law o' nights at the Brooklyn Law School.

Anyone seen or heard about Shorty Trumbower lately? They surely missed Shorty and his ginger on the University nine the past season. And incidentally, they could have made use of Hal Neubauer's trusty right arm and Harry Hoffman's potent war club. Seems to us they haven't had a good baseball team on the Hill since the class of 1925 departed.

1926

Bob Adams is assistant to the divisional merchandise manager of William Taylor Son & Co., one of Cleveland's big department stores. Bob lives at 14605 Drexman road, Shaker Heights.

Ross Andrew is getting his mail at 812 Division st., Niagara Falls, N. Y. Ross is a chemist in the Niagara Falls plant of the Mathieson Alkali Co.

1927

Bill Rucker reports a change in his house address to 138 Washington ave., Little Ferry, N. J.

Art Hayes writes that his correct address is 1033 Garfield ave., South Pasadena, Cal.

Jimmy Graham is selling investment securities for the all-Brown firm of Barrett, Cummings & Evans, 606 Hospital Trust bldg., Providence.

"Pep" Edson was smiling like a boy bound for the circus when we met him on College Hill last month. And why? Because "Pep," after a training period in Boston, has come back to Providence to work for Spencer Trask & Co., investments, 1141 Hospital Trust bldg.

Linus Travers, for the past year or more a radio announcer with WEAN, Providence, is at present commercial director for WNAC, The Shepard Stores, Boston. Linus did a fine job while he was in Providence, introducing book reviews and talks on literary subjects that were enjoyable to listen to. Report is that he is writing a book on a radio subject.

"Group Judgment"

During the past thirty-five years, American business has expanded far beyond the experience of any individual.

Because the experience of certain groups of men has kept pace with this rapid expansion, it is often advisable to let "group judgment" aid individual opinion in shaping business policies.

The officers and directors of this bank make up such a group. If you would like their judgment on some business matter, come in and talk things over. You are welcome any time.

The Business Concern creates a Sinking Fund to meet definite future obligations.

Why not apply the same principle to meet your definite future obligations?

The above cut which we use through the courtesy of the INSURANCE RESEARCH AND REVIEW pictures a big idea in a very small space.

$4000.00

or $1000 a year for four years is a minimum cost of a college education in terms of dollars. In fact it will undoubtedly demand nearer $6000 or $1500 a year and this is a fair minimum not the maximum.

18 Years of age is an average college entrance age. It is impossible to know exactly at what age your child will be ready to enter college. You can very wisely accept the average, namely age 18, and prepare accordingly.

At Birth

of the child or during the first year, therefore, is a good time to establish a definite fund for education, for you will have 18 years in which to accumulate the fund and the annual savings will consequently be small.

At 5 Years of age

only 13 years remain before college age and the annual savings must be increased in order to create the fund.

At 10 Years of age

the grade is steeper for the number of years that are left has been greatly reduced. The annual savings must be materially increased, if you wait until the child is 10.

At 15 Years of age

the child is within only 3 years of college age. If you wait until then to begin your savings for educational purposes, the annual savings will mount into the four figures.

At 18 Years of age

the child will be ready for college and if no definite provision has been made in advance, the expenses must be met out of current income or out of capital if any fortunately exists.

The Puritan Childs Educational Fund matures when the child is 18. It pays him a definite sum each year for the four college years. It may be established at birth of the child or at any age prior to age 9.
